

From what materials are the pressure switch housings made?

Depending on the application and product, materials such as plastics, metals or stainless steels are used.