

What is the influence of the altitude on the set point adjustment?

In case of relative pressure switches the altitude has no influence on the set point adjustment.